

The 2022 KU Social Sciences International Conference:

Roles of Social Sciences in Sustainability Transformation in the Global South

An online conference to be held on 9 June 2022

Kasetsart University's Faculty of Social Sciences, in collaboration with its organizing partners, invites papers and posters for its first International Conference titled "Roles of Social Sciences in Sustainability Transformation in the Global South". The conference investigates how Social Sciences may contribute to the conception, design and implementation of the many sustainability transformations that must be accomplished if people across the Global South are to continue to experience sustainable gains in their lives and livelihoods.

Suggested sub-themes:

- Trends, challenges and barriers to sustainability transformation in the Global South
- Design (and re-design) of sustainability transformations
- Governance of sustainability transformations
- Agri-food transformations and Future Food
- Sustainable urban development
- Sustainable communities
- The role of media in accomplishing sustainability transformations
- Accommodating polarization in a post-truth world
- Digital transformations
- Technologies for sustainability transformation
- Sustainable transformation of tourism
- Community heritage for posterity and social acceptance
- Sustainability transformation through a historical lens

Papers will go through a one-step submission process. Authors are requested to submit their full papers which will be peer-reviewed for acceptance by the conference academic committee. For posters a two-step process applies: poster authors are requested to submit an abstract for peer review first. The authors of accepted abstracts will then be invited to submit full posters for the conference. Submission deadline for full papers and poster abstracts is 18 March 2022. Guidelines for paper and poster authors are available at our conference website.
